FRENCH TO BE TAUGHT IN SUMMER

Four Weeks Advanced Courses

IN RESIDENCE.

Students Will Hear, Speak and Read Nothing but French.

For a week or so past posters have been in evidence in the various buildings of the University advertising the French Holiday Courses, which are to be held at McGill during the month of July. Similar posters have been placed in all the educational institutions of any importance throughout this country and the United States, while recently a batch of circulars illustrating the objects and methods of the Summer School have been printed for distribution in the wake of these advance posters.

It appears that two grades of training will be supplied, one comparatively elementary and the other more advanced in character. They are intended for all persons, more especially teachers, who are desirous of perfecting their theoretical and practical knowledge of French.

Those who attended the schools held some years ago, were mostly teachers and university students, but there have always been representatives of the legal, medical, and other professions.

The object of t he courses is attained by means of lectures and practical lessons given in French, the French Boarding Department, Excursions, Sight-seeing and Evening En-

JUNIOR TEAM SCORE EASY HOCKEY WIN

Emo and Connor are Stellar Performers in Game.

SCORE 4 to 0.

Team Now Holds the Junior Championship of Quebec

Playing on ice covered with slush and deep pools of water, the McGill Junior team ripped the defence of the Interscholastic championship team wide open and scored a total of four goals while holding the opposition scoreless, thus winning the chance to go to Toronto and play in the semi-finals for the John Ross Robertson Memorial Trophy, which is emblematic of the Junior Hockey Championship of Canada. Although the Junior team out-weighted the Lower Canada delegation this was far from a point in their favor, as the soft ice, well concealed by water and slush, made it difficult for the heavy men to get any speed at all. The teams had both throughout the season won most of their games by clever combination playing, so that they were badly handicapped by the impossibility of passing the puck across the heavy ice. The Red and White had the better of the play throughout all but a small part of the game. They out-skated their opponents, and stick-handled far better than ever before.

The West End team was unable to work the puck through the Red and White defence, and on the occasions that they did McCall was able to stop and clear in such a way as to not leave the slightest chance for a tally. Time after time the Lower Canada goal tender was unable to clear before the centre man got in to the puck, and only poor shooting kept the score low. This was due to the pools of deep water in front of both goals, in which the rubber would stop dead, leaving it for the first man to get it. It was in this point that McGill had an advantage, because of the speed of Emo and Joslin, who got the disk out of the danger zone time after time by out-skating the L.C.S. team.

The game started in a listless manner. McCall had the sun from one of the upper windows in his eyes, but was able to stop everything that came his way, which was not much. The teams were unable to show anything in the line of fast work, because of the ice.

The second period started with a rush. Both teams were becoming accustomed to the heavy going, and were able to pass better. McCall made some pretty stops when Wray came down the ice time after time, shooting from outside the defence. Then the Red and White nailed the puck, and passing well, worked their way up the ice, Connor passing to Emo, who scored on a clever shot.

PRESENTATION OF FRENCH PLAYLETS

Actors Rehearse for Performance in Two Weeks' Time.

Following on the example set by the McGill Players' Club in their presentation of three one-act plays last spring, the Department of Modern Languages will shortly stage three one-act French playlets in the Convocation Hall of the Royal Victoria College.

For some weeks past the actors and actreses who, are drawn for the most part from the third and fourth years in French, have been rehearsing industriously, and it is expected that the plays will be ready for a critical public in about two weeks' time.

In order to vary the programme as much as possible three distinct types of modern French comedy were chosen. The first is a delicate playlet of the "precieuse" type called "Les Coteaux de Medoc," from the pen of Tristan Bernard. Next comes a representative of the highly amusing sentimental comedy or "comedie larmoyante" type—"La Joie Fait Peur," by St. Marc-Girardin. As a climax one of the uproarious farce-comedies of the well-known anti-beaurocratic dramatist Courteline has been chosen, entitled „Le Commissaire est Bon Enfant."

Admission will be free to all students and members of the professoriate. Outside admission will be by invitation only.

"OLD McGILL" TO BE SOLD DURING WEEK

Subscriptions for Annual to be Had on Campus.

USE CAUTION MONEY.

Faculty Representatives to Handle Sales of Books.

The 1923 Annual Board, who have been busily engaged on the publication of this year's edition of "Old McGill" since before the Christmas holidays, will start their sale campaign this morning in all the Faculties of the University.

The Board are of opinion that this year's Annual will measure up to the high standard set by its predecessors in every way. Especial care has been taken to make the book a complete and attractive record of the session 1921-22, while at the same time devoting a large amount of space to the Junior Years as the onus of publication and ultimate responsibility devolves upon them. The Art work in particular is of an unusually high order. A. L. Perry, whose work is well known to almost every student, was a Junior in Architecture this season, and has handled the position of Art Editor for the coming Annual.

Considering that the Annual tradition should not be lost to McGill, and that the "Yearbook," which appeared last year might well be regarded as a special departure designed to commemorate the McGill Centennial, the Junior Year representatives this year decided unanimously to revert to the old Annual. This decision was largely in accordance with the general trend of student opinion about the Campus. Consequently this year's book will once again bear the name "Old McGill" on the familiar dark cover, and will attain the quarter-century mark in Junior publications at McGill by being the twenty-fifth of its line.

The details of sale are very simple, and should cause no undue red-tape. Following on the plan adopted by the Yearbook last year, slips will be issued with a printed statement by which intending subscribers will be enabled to sign away $3.00 (three dollars) from the amount of their caution money deposited with the Bursar. These slips will be distributed through all the years of the various Faculties by the Junior Year representatives to the Annual Board or by their representatives. As soon as the Annuals are delivered by the printers, which is expected to beabout the first week of next month, they will be distributed to the subscribers at once.

It might be mentioned that the Board have definitely decided to limit the number of Annuals to one thousand copies in order that no loss may be incurred by extra copies left over unsold at the end of the campaign. As there are close upon six hundred Juniors, it is easily seen that students of other years desiring a copy of the 1923 Annual would do well to sign the subscription blanks immediately.

"DAILY" NEWS BOARD.

A meeting of the News Board will be held in the "Daily" office this evening at 7.15. A full attendance is essential.

CLUB VISITS TWO PLANTS OF INTEREST

Engineers Make Trip to Glass and Ice Cream Plants.

ICE CREAM POPULAR.

Glass Factory Running Full Blast—Much of Interest Seen.

The Mechanical Club staged a very successful trip on Saturday afternoon, when the Purity Ice Cream plant, and the Dominion Glass Works were visited. Several members of the Engineering Department staff were with the party, and helped the plant managers to explain the various operations that were being performed.

The Ice Cream plant on Stanley St. was visited first. The cream and milk are pasteurized and mixed in the right proportions with the other ingredients, and then pumped into tanks, where the mixtur is kept cool by a rotating coil, through which water circulates. From these coolers the mixture goes to the freezers, where it is chilled and beaten up with carbon dioxide gas until it reaches the proper consistency and density. The ice cream is then run into cans or trays, and packed in the freezing room at about twenty below zero. The group watched the freezing process for some time, and then inspected the ammonia compressors and the boiler room. The Polar Bar machine was found less interesting than these from a mechanic's point of view, as it consists essentially of a length of light chain and a dozen hatpins. Before leaving, the party were served with cones filled direct from the machine, and packed with about twice what one usually gets in a cone at that. One individual, doubtless with the "Take a Brick Home" slogan in mind, had a pint carton filled.

At the glass works, bottle making was in full swing, and every stage of the process from the sand-pile to the "Handle with SSare" label was observed. Mr. Morin, the manager, very kindly showed the party around, and talked most interestingly about the business. The first machines to be seen were seemingly very complicated ones, which suck in melted glass and turn out finished bottles at at rate of one per second.

They consist of ten units revolving slowly around a common vertical axis. Each unit in turn is moved over a part of the furnace, where it picks up its charge of gas. As it moves away from the furnace parts of the unit fall away, revealing two blobs of glass with a small air space in the centre of each. Then the mold closes on the glass, which is blown out to fill it, and as it again approaches the furnace the mold sinks and passes under it, while the upper part of the unit takes in fresh glass as before. STUDENTS SOCIETY HOLDS SEMI-ANNUAL Lectures Cancelled Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Semi-Annual Meeting of the Students' Society will be held in the big hall of the Union on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. This in reality is the most important meeting of the year, for after all the season's business has been wound up, the various major athletic societies present their annual reports to the meeting, and then proceed to the election of the minor officers for their several executives, the presidents having already been chosen at the recent elections.

A meeting of the Students' Society has never been known to pass without some matter of more than ordinary importance coming up for discussion, and the final meeting always looms larger in the scale than any other. For this reason all lectures between the hours of ten and one are regularly cancelled throughout all the Faculties of the University on this day.

A political speaker, warning the public against the imposition of heavier tariffs on imports, said; "If you don't stop shearing the wool off the sheep that lays the golden egg, you'll pump it dry."

This reminds us of that other far-sighted orator who, in a burst of eloquence, said: "All along the untrodden pathways of the past we view the footprints of an unseen hand."

MONTREAL, MONDAY, MARCH 13, 1922.

"OLD McGILL," 1923.

The Business Board of the 1923 Annual have announced the opening of their drive to secure subscriptions for the book which will be published shortly. For some time they have been preparing the material for the annual publication, and they promise to have an edition that will equal any of those that have been issued in past years.

The business of securing subscriptions for the Junior Year publication has always met with a great amount of success on the campus, and the men in charge of the sale have seldom had any difficulty in disposing of the copies printed for the classes other than that in charge of the issue. The truth of the matter is that the students do not buy the book so much for the features which it may contain as much as for the purpose of securing a record of the year's activities. A properly edited year book contains all of the matters of interest that would usually be in a student's diary were he to keep a faithful account of all the interesting events that have taken place during the college session. The value of the book lies in the interest it will arouse in future years rather than the passing worth of the volume to the student who likes to see his photograph in print.

The nature of the enterprise has always made it necessary that the total number of copies should be sold before the book is printed. At the time when the first of the volumes come away from the binder, the men who have prepared the matter are hard at work in an effort to pass their sessional examinations; they have not the time to arrange for the proper conduct of the sale, nor is there any means of making the announcement, inasmuch as the Daily has then ceased publication. In addition, the financial risk is too great to allow for any guesswork concerning the number of copies that will be needed if the sale is left until the students may examine the books they are to buy. Under the present systm of arranging the sale, a sufficient number of books are printed to fill the orders that have been sent in, and the men who do not buy their books in advance have no means of securing a copy.

There are very few of the students who do not intend to secure the current issue of "Old McGill," but many of them are very tardy in placing their orders. The men who control the sale of the book are all voluntary workers, and they have to expend an additional amount of time and effort if they do not obtain the required number of orders at once. As an appreciation of the work done by the students in charge of the book this year the people who are going to buy a copy might give their orders as soon as possible.

SHELVED AGAIN.

The fiat has gone forth. The University authorities have decided to postpone the remodelling of the antiquated and insanitary interior of the Old Arts Building for another year, and to devote the funds set aside for this purpose to the construction of a Mining Building close to the present Engineering Building. At the same time work will be begun on the new Gymnasium during the coming summer. Despite an urgent plea for the construction of this building as near as possible to the Molson Memorial Stadium, which is the only logical centre of athletics at this University, it has been decided, it has been finally decided, to make use of the "hollow" on the Campus near the Physics Building for this purpose. So be it.

It is at least something to have a respectable University Gymnasium after so many years of waiting. If Physical Education is to be compulsory for the students of the Freshman and Sophomore years it is most desirable that their exercises should be carried on in attractive and sanitary surroundings. More important still, there will be accommodation for about a hundred students over the proposed gymnasium. The foundations of future Dormitories are about to be laid. After all, the mere question of ultimate location, is not such a very important matter, as long as something is definitely and finally done. Let us be duly thankful for the Gymnasium, wherever it may be. But what of the sudden decision to postpone the much-needed amelioration of the Arts Building?

If there are two most wretchedly housed Faculties in this Universiay, they are those of Arts and Law. To say that the average visitor from another University, after a brief tour of inspection, is wont to stand completely aghast is to put it very mildly indeed. The last-named Faculty has for some years past been quartered in the northern half of an antiquated residence on University Street, which they have shared with the Divinity Hall of the Montreal Theological Colleges affiliated with McGill. Their case is bad, but not quite so desperate as that of their elder sister, the Faculty of Arts.

At the top of the Campus, near the last resting place of the Honourable James McGill, is a long stone building, consisting of a central block, constructed in or about the Year of Grace 1840, and two wings joined on to this main building, and of somewhat later date. The East Wing is at present occupied by the administrative offices of the University, and by the Department of Social Service, and the West by the Department of Physical Education. There remains, then, the central block and certain portions of the truncated arms which serve to joint it to the two wings. This central building, which consists in the main of a multitude of passageways, corridors and intricate stairways, with a limited number of obsolete and extremely ill-ventilated classrooms thrown in for good measure, is at present dedicated to the joint occupation of the Faculty of Arts and the School of Commerce—two academic bodies which have nothing whatever in common other than the utter wretchedness of their abode.

All arrangements had been made to rip out the interior of this building from cellar to cupola, and to build it anew during the coming summer. Nothing could have been more desirable. But despite the glowing promises made to the assembled graduates on the occasion of the Centennial Celebrations the Arts Faculty has been shelved again.

Of course no one would go so far as to deny the sentimental associations embodied in every nook and corner of the Old Arts Building. Such and such a forgotten professor taught in such and such a classroom so many decades ago. It is, after all, so picturesque. Yes, so picturesque, and so insanitary, and so overcrowded, and such a delightfully inflammable prey for the first unextinguished match that chances to fall between a chink in the boards. The City Hall fire was picturesque, very picturesque, and very expensive . No one quite knows why the Arts Building didn't go up in smoke long ago, and if steps are not taken to provide it with a modern fire-proof interior it may do so any day. Doubtless the conflagration would be every wit as picturesque as was the fire which destroyed the City Hall, and it would be almost as expensive in the end. However, it is not to be.

A glance at the calendar shows that next year students intending to study either Medicine or Law will be required to take a year in the Faculty of Arts or else pass the Senior Matriculation. What is to be done with those electing to pursue the first course? Away with them to the Old Arts Building. There is always room for another somewhere or other. The turgid air in the ill-ventilated classrooms can't get much thicker than it generally is at the end of a long day. Perhaps future generations of students will be privileged to gaze upon a new Arts Building, and in the meantime we can only wait and wonder.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office — that they write upon ONE SIDE of the paper ONLY.

The Editor,
McGill Daily.
Dear Sir:

Please allow me to attempt to correct a popular delusion through the ever-adjusting medium of your column.

There seems to be a general opinion fairly justifiable, about the college, that the poor showing of a few members of the Glee Club at the otherwise successful Union Smoker was a typical example of the Club's ability.

The reason for their defective exhibition was due to the unfortunate position which their performance was granted upon the evenings programme; which position, nevertheless, was wholly justifiable when so many important items had to be provided for. By the time the Glee Club was called upon, most of the members had left, thinking that the evening's entertainment had come to a close, and only nine out of the twenty-four present at the evening's practice were on hand.

Again, it is the policy of the Club to refrain from singing any of their best numbers at functions previous to their concert on the 21st, of this month, in the hope that the audience on that date should be well served.

It was impossible, also, for the conductor, so essential in chorus-singing, to have been present at the smoker, but at the concert, not only will the Club have his assistance, but also the support of the Students Orchestra.

The explanation of these defaults, the most serious of which was—as at the recent performance at the Emmanuel church—inattendance on the part of the members, will, I hpoe, account for the disastrous showing at the smoker, and help to assure the students that the concert will be well worth attending.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, I remain,
Yours truly,
P. R. Wilson.

The Editor,
McGill Daily:

Sir,—I noticed a prominent article in your columns a few days ago dealing with the subject of the recent ratification of the arms of the University by the Heralds' College at London, in which attention was called to the correct blasoning of the McGill arms.

I wonder if something could not be done to expurge the appalling number of false crests and coats-of-arms of McGill that are to be seen floating around the Campus, and displayed for sale in the windows of some of our local retailers. If the Athletic Association are to insist on the exclusive display of McGill insignia some steps ought surely to be taken to insure the correctness of such insignia. The humble martlet, which figures so prominently on the McGill arms, is heraldically a small bird without feet, and should be displayed in the present instance coloured red on a white background. Walk along St. Catherine street any day and you will be sure to see any number of shop-windows displaying so-call McGill coats-of-arms in which the poor martlet seems to have been suddenly changed into a largesized crow with rather fluffy feathers and a large pair of feet at the end of two absurdly long legs.

This is only one case in point. Colours are constantly transposed and counter-changed in a manner that should make all the predecessors of the present Garter King-at-Arms turn in their graves. And these barbarities are widespread on the Campus itself. Even the R.V.C. must rank itself among the guilty, as the walls of the common room there serve as the background for three or four hopelessly inaccurate caricatures of McGill arms.

Let's do things properly while we are about it, Mr. Editor. It is quite as absurd to go about displaying the falsified arms of the University as it is to refer to McGill University as "The McGill's Colleges."

Yours sincerely,
ACCURACY.

PEPYS AT McGILL

Sunday, March 12th. (Lord's Day)—This day I did lie a-musing a goodly while upon the sorry truckle-bed in my chamber, where I am forced to lie by night, and first musing on things of a philosophic nature I went thence to a consideration of divers strange matters about these colleges such as the burthensome number of our discourses, which weary a man so almost to Deathe that short of imbibing a most prodigious quantity of strong ale at the end of eache day he may in no wise keep himself from slumber, and in sooth I know no cause why our discourses might not be reduced to one half without any loss of the pith and substance contained therein. So on a sudden I came out of my reveries with a start to discouver by the Ingersoll time-piece on my table that it was close upon noon. Mightily downcast in that I was now too late to go to church, and the more so that it is now Lent. Of a most wrathfull humour still at the letter I did receive at the Arts Building from certain rogues and writ in the name of the Annual Board, but, Lord, who they may be I know not. In this they bid me in a most churlish manner to fashion something in writing for the sorte of books that they do propose shortly to publishe about these colleges, and this in such a manner as if they did consider me to be a sort of comique witt. So this night to the indicting of a very sharp letter of remonstrance which I shall despatch to their address on the morrow, and after a little to bed.

ALL OVER BUT THE SHOUTING.

Curate (at local football game)—How do you think we shall get on?

Captain—Well, sir, our goalkeeper ain't much use, our centre forward 'as a gammy knee and the left 'alf-back may not turn up, but—my brother Jim is refereeing for us.

MEDICAL MEN MEET TODAY

Medical Society to Hear Prof. Leacock at 8 p.m.

The meeting of the Medical Society to-night will undoubtedly prove a very popular affair, as have previous activities of this undergraduate body, such as the Medical Dance, held a little over a week ago. To-day's event wil be held in the New Medical Building at 8 p.m., when Dr. Leacock will give an address on the topic—"The Lighter Side of Life."

A large attendance is called for, but with the programme planned and the reputation which this society holds, a good turnout is inevitable.

It is well known that Medical men do not attend meetings for the sake of refreshments, yet it is also understood that they do enjoy them when they are served. This evening there will be adequate for all present.

"Now, sir," said the bullying counsel sternly to the witness from the country, "I want you to tell me plainly whether a great effort has or has not been made to make you tell a different story."

"A different story from the one I have told you, sir?"

"That is what I mean."

"Yes, sir. Several persons have tried to get me to do that, but they couldn't."

"Now, sir, upon your oath, I wish to know who those persons are."

The witness scratched his head, and at last replied:

"Well, I guess you've tried 'bout the hardest."

For the next ten minutes the West End team tried everything possible to score, but found it impossible. Then once again McGill found their stride, and the wings tore up the ice, keeping the opposition goaltender busy for several minutes, and with but a few seconds to go Connor lifted the puck into the nets.

At the start of the third stanza it was evident that at least the teams would not strike dirt during the game, but there was a tendency for the various pools of water to merge, which did not add to the game. If a man went down he was well aware of the fact.

The game was slow for the first part of this period. The heavy ice had its effect on both teams, and substitutes were frequent. After ten minutes of slow work the Red and White scored. Gammel was on the terminal end on a fast string of passes, and sagged the net for the third count. The puck was centred, and on a series of shots at the L.C.C. goal Connor slipped the final tally in with a clever bit of stick-handling. Time and again the West End team tried in the next few minutes to score, but realizing the impossibility little by little the game slowed down the finish being as listless as the start.

Jack Emo and Fred Connor were undoubtedly the most conspicuous figures in the championship game. Emo on the defence, left little hope of breaking through, while when he went down the ice he gave the L.C.C. goaler a chance to make some hard stops. Starting the game in the second period by the first tally, he showed that he was not only a sure defence man, but fast on the ice, despite weight, and a sure shot. Connor set the pace of the game throughout the entire three periods. He was the fastest and heaviest man in the forward line, scoring twice as a result. Gammel, who sagged the net for a point, was all over the ice, and as a forward showed speed and stick-handling far above par, despite the ice.

On the Lower Canada team Wray was the most talented performer. Although he suffered a severe slash in the head from a skate in a recent practice game, he nevertheless was a constant menace to the Red and White goal. Eveleigh was the cleverest man as far as stick-handling went, and has made a name for himself as a fast skater, but the heavy ice held him down so that he was unable to score. Both goal tenders had undesirable pools of water situated so as to cause much trouble, as they were well showered at any attempt at score.

The game was very clean, no penalties being awarded. The referees handled the game in a noteworthy manner.

The team now holds the Quebec Junior Championship, having defeated the interscholastic champions, and won the Junior Ctiy League.

The line-up was as follows:

FRENCH TO BE TAUGHT IN SUMMER.

tertainments under the guidance and supervision of French-speaking persons. The students will live in an exclusively French atmosphere, and hear, speak, and read nothing but French every day for four weeks.

To render this French atmosphere possible, all students must be in residence and will have to pledge themselves to use the French language on all occasions, and to read French books and French newspapers exclusively.

The students will take lectures in the mornings and in the afternoons will join conversational groups, take sight-seeing trips to various points of interest, visit industrial plants. A number of "Causeries Artistques" will also be given in connection with visits to the Art Gallery, and any private collections that may be thrown open to the students. The evenings will be devoted to entertainments, illustrated lectures on French life, study in the library, conversation and the singing of French songs.

A number of model lessons in the Modern Method will be given for the benefit of teachers.

The women's residence will be in the Royal Victoria College, while the men will have rooms in Strathcona Hall.

WICKSTEED HONORS WON BY McGILL

Home Team Win by Narrow Margin.

EXCELLENT FORM.

Games and Folk Dances by Physical Eds.

The last intercollegiate contest, and the first of its kind to be held in Montreal was the gymnastic competition between Toronto Varsity and McGill, which McGill won by the score of 745 to 741.

The meet took place on Saturday at 10 a.m. and 7.30 p.m., in the gymnasium of the Central Y.M.C.A., on Drummond St. The least interesting part of the programme was performed in the morning, when the set movements were gone through on the apparatus. The apparatus consisting of the high bar, the parallel bars, the horse and the mats. In this exercise Varsity was more adroit, but the McGill men were more deliberate, and as the chief marking of the morning exercise was on the form, McGill won this part of the contest by 9 points.

In the evening at 7.30 in order to make the competition more attractive, the Physical Eds. were called upon to demonstrate their skill in the different forms of exercise.

The first part of the programme was both instructive and interesting, the Physical Eds. of 1st and 2nd year went through a series of free standing exercises. The movements were well timed, being syiphlike and graceful.

Following this the senior group gave a fine exhibition of club swinging. Many of the hardest and most difficult of club swinging stunts were done wtih a precision and a grace which is seldom seen.

The McGill and Toronto men then tried their skill on the high bar. The movements were not set in these exercises, and the men were able to do more daring and spectacular stunts. In this apparatus, William of Varsity, was rather good, but was excelled by Delahaye of McGill. The latter went through a series of clever and well-timed stunts, and was easily the best man on the apparatus.

The next apparatus was the parallel bars, in which Varsity had the edge. Both sides had very good men in this division, Scott and Holland of McGill were both very neat in all their motions, and showed up very well. Adams and Chadwick, of Varsity, also did some fine work, the latter went through a series of slow motion exercises, and without the slightest momentum or aid was able to put himself into all the positions which the other men were only able to obtain through speed. The motions were exceeedingly interesting, and pleased the audience immensely.

The contestants next showed their ability on the horse. Wiliams, of Varsity, could do almost anything with his legs, and the way he could twist them on this apparatus made it very spectacular, Scott of McGill, also showed up well, his back lift being of the highest order.

Scott of McGill and Williams of Varsity, electrified the audience by a series of tumbles and handsprings on the mats. Chadwick also showed up well in this art, and from back flips to twisting his legs itno all positions, he was an expert and excited loud applause. Rolleston also did well throughout.

The Physical Eds. next presented a number of interpretive classical dances an old English Folk Dance being the first of the series. The next was a barn dance, which was daintily interpreted. The Irish Jig received the generous applause of the crowd. It was snappy, very rythmic and Irish. The last one was a Greek classic, called, "A Nymph and her Shadow."

The judges of the gymnastics were Mr. Furey, Mr. Powter, Major Long. Mr. J. H. Croker was time keeper.

UNIVERSAL TONGUE IS A PROBABILITY

Philadelphia.—A universal language for trade purposes was predicted by Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, at an address before the Philadelphia Society for the promotion of liberal studies. The new language, he said, would be adopted only by persons engaged in international commercial pursuits, while race and national pride would preserve the mother tongue in each country.

Tracing the Greek and Roman literature, Sir Robert said the classics, taken as a whole, were the basis of all present-day languages. Speaking of humanism as opposed to materialism, and those who rely on force, he said:

"It required three months to persuade even the Allies to reduce their armaments. The civilization that will use those implements of war is far from being humanized."

The world, he declared, is not united on any fundamental morality. "The church is weakened," he added, "but still Christianity is a powerful humanizing factor."

INTERCOLLEGIATE UNION CONVENTION

To Promote Friendly Relationship Between Universities.

Fourteen universities met recently at Boston for the annual convention of University and College Unions. The object of these annual meetings is to promote a spirit of friendliness among the colleges, and to assist all newcomers by helpful advice in matters pertaining to management, and so forth.

At this year's convention an election of officers took place, and a constitution was drawn up, Drake, of Ohio State, being nominated for president, and Bickersteth, of Hart House, as secretary. Foster, of Harvard, was elected to the third position.

The secretary has charge of what may be called a news syndicate, or clearing house to whom all correspondence is addressed. His duty is to keep in touch with other colleges, keeping them informed of new schemes and offering general good advice. For instance, should a college contemplate the establishing of a cafeteria, the secretary of the association furnishes them advice for their venture.

In the United States there seems to be very keen interest taken in the support of college unions, most colleges paying some individual to act as manager. The alumni and undergrads are also actively interested, but matters of responsibility rest on the shoulders of the manager. B. C. Rochester, president-elect of the Union, who represented McGill in the convention, was much impressed by several novel schemes employed by other unions.

College unions have been in vogue only about twenty-five years, and they are coming into prominence of late years. McGill Union is one of the oldest, ranking near the Harvard Union, which was inaugurated in 1899. McGill belongs to the association because all colleges possessing a union are eligible for membership.

Next year the annual meeting is to be held at Toronto.

AT THE THEATRES

PRINCESS

Headlining this week's bill at the Princess Theatre will be the versatile and capable young vaudeville star, Corinne Tilton, in a charmingly staged and cleverly acted musical and dancing novelty entitled, "A Chameleon Revue." Originality is the foundation on which this effervescent bit of mirth, melody and decoration has been built, the originality extending into the programme where the description of what is to be is given in rhyme. Miss Tilton is ably assisted by Benny and Western, two eccentric dancing comedians, George Phelps, Violet Follis and a group of girl friends. The revue was staged by Al. Laughlin, who has done exceptionally creditable work, his numbers and groupings being a series of animated pictures. The lyrics are by Cliff Hess, music by Milton Schwarzwald, with two special numbers composed by B. C. Hilliam, the soldier composer who provided the musical score for "Buddies," and who is well-known here. The offering is effectively mounted and vividly costumed.

Ruth Budd, "the Girl with the Smile," is another of the Princess attractions. Her aerial act is combined with comedy of an ingenious type, and her costumes and skill make her performance something to be remembered. She has just completed an extended engagement with Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic atop the New Amsterdam Theatre, where her ability proved one of the most welcome things New York has had in a long time.

As a comedian, Herman Timberg is too well known to be commented upon. He is one of the best character comedians, either in vaudeville or in musical comedy, for his fame for creating fun is known far and wide. As an author and composer, he has written one musical comedy called, "Tick Tack Toe," and an elaborate one-act comedy known as "Chicken Chow Mein." He will be seen in his latest offering, which he calls "Little Bits."

So carefully have Bailey and Cowan staged their new act and with such minute attention to details, that it has become known as "The Little Production." Estelle Davis, a pretty and fascinating young lady, has joined forces with these two boys, formerly known as "The Banjoer and the Songster," and in addition to their music and songs they have added a character costumes number, the offering being handsomely and effectively staged.

Rena Arnold and Sammy Weston will be seen in a skit enttiled "Pills," in which they provide many wholesome laughs. Burns and Lorraine, a team of clever comedians, present a novel singing, talking and dancing offering.

Page, Hack and Mack, are pantomime comedy equllibrists, who present a series of tricks incredibly difficult, but all performed with a facility and grace that astounds as well as thrills. The act is held to be one of the most astounding on the vaudeville stage today.

A PSYCHOLOGICAL SOC. PROPOSED

Great Advantages to be Gained from this Form of Club.

Those around the College who are interested in any field of Psychological studies, will be very pleased to hear that a movement has now been started to found a Psychological Club.

There are great advantages to be gained from this form of club. Papers are read by various members upon whatever particular topic the club has taken for the basis of its foundation. The discussions which follow these papers, being of a more informal fashion than any discussion in a lecture room, bring out more details, promote deeper interest, and broadens one's viewpoint.

Similarly, in the formation of a Psychological Club, the intention of those who are framing such a plan, is to provide a number of occasions when students may meet and thrash out together some of the perplexing questions on modern psychology.

Take, for example, such a subject as psychoanalysis. At McGill there are no courses given, which deal with this absorbing study, at any great length. The nearest approach may be found, perhaps, in the medical course on "Abnormal Psychology." The advantages of this new club are very apparent in this line alone.

Or look at the question of immigration and race-absorbtion. To study this from the psychological standpoint is to view it in a fascinating light, and yet it can receive little or no attention in the lecture room.

Again, turn to the many riddles of our modern educational methods which at present take a very small place in the curriculum. Undoubtedly there is a great need for such a club as this.

So far, any of these questions have been discussed under the agenda of the Philosophical Society. Now, however, the activities of this club have expanded so much, and the scope of the Psychological field has so greatly enlarged, that both cannot be handled under one society. What is needed is a Psychological Club to deal with its own topics and to hear the philosophers in their more abstract discussions.

The inaugural meeting of the new club will be held in Strathcona Hall on Tuesday, March 21st, at 5.10 p.m., sharp. Dr. W. D. Tait, Professor of Phychology at McGill, will be there to address the meeting, and he is very keen on the formation of this club, which speaks considerable hopes for a great success.

To any who consider this a bad time of the year in which to form a club, it may be said that the idea is to have a working executive ready to start off next session with a swing.

Membership will be open to all men and women of the University, and is not confined to any one Faculty. Medical students as well as Arts men will find much practical gain from the activities of this club.

It is hoped that all who can will come to Strathcona Hall on Tuesday, March 21st, at 5.10 p.m., and start the new club with the support it deserves.

CLUB VISITS TWO PLANTS OF INTEREST.

mold discharges its two bottles just before it closes on the next pair.

These machines help themselves from large furnaces holding 285 tons of glass, and in which the liquid material must be kept at a constant level. The bottles are quickly transferred from the machines to the annealing ovens, 75 feet long, through which they travel slowly for eight hours, after which they are examined and packed. The ovens use oil fuel, while the furnaces are fired with gas supplied from a battery of producers. The electrically driven air compressors were next examined, and Mr. Morin pointed out a vacuum pump also, with the remark that there was probably nothing like it at McGill. The company have a large and well-equipped machine shop, where they make the many molds required for each special pattern of bottle.

Mignonette Kokin and Fred Galetti, the former a dancer and the latter a tutor of monks, will be seen in "Novelty Surprise," in which they imitate one of the groups of street performers so common in Italy.

The Canadian United News, showing Princess Mary's Wedding, and "Tours of the World," with Burton Holmes, portraying a "Souvenir of Singapore," complete the programme.

MIDSHIPMEN SCORE WIN IN STATES

Grey and Black, of U. of T., Bring Home Victories.

SCORE 5—2.

Navy Team More Rugged and Husky.

The Annapolis midshipmen scored a clean cut victory over the combined Toronto, Queens and McGill team on Saturday. The navy team scored a five to two win.

The midshipmen were far more husky and rugged than the Canadian team, and for the most part showed a slight superiority in boxing ability. Heavy hitting and good head work was notable in all the bouts, but the navy were able to stand the punishment.

The Toronto boxers in two cases came through with a victory. Gray scored a technical knock out in the third round over Sebald, of the Navy team. This was a whirlwind scrap, the Canadian intercollegiate champion standing up well and earning a hard victory. Black, another Varsity delegate of intercollegiate fame, fought through an extra round with the American captain, and won on points. This was a fast mill, and some heavy hitting occurred.

Latta, of the Midshipmen, won from Holmes, of Queens, by a technical knockout in the second round. Holmes put up a plucky battle, but was unable to stand the terrific onslaught of his opponent.

Shackell, of the Red and White, was up against O'Donnell. The first two rounds were fast, both men standing a lot, but Shackell went down for a technical knockout in the third.

Brewer suffered the same fate as his fellow student. Leach, the Navy man, managed to break through the defence and scored a technical knockout.

Mahan, of Toronto, stood up against O'Reagan, of the Midshipman, but lost on points after a clever bit of work.

In the heavyweight division Matthews, the Navy star, won on points from McMeans, of McGill, after three terrific rounds of work.

Although the final score was close in two of the bouts, the Canadian teams gave the Midshipmen a hard battle for honors, but were unable to withstand the more rugged fighters.

Summary:

115 pounds—Latta, Navy, won from Holmes, Queens, by technical knockout in second round.

125 pounds—Gray, Toronto, won from Sebald, Navy, by technical knockout in the third round.

135 pounds—O'Donnell, Navy, won from Shackell, McGill, by technical knockout, third round.

145 pounds—Leach, Navy, won from Brewer, McGill, by technical after an extra round.

160 pounds—Black, Toronto, won from Captain Zetti, Navy, on points, after an xetra round.

175 pounds—O'Reagan, Navy, won from Mahan, Toronto, on points, in the third round.

Heavyweight — Matthews, Navy, won from McMeans, McGill, on points third round.

GIRLS IN NIGHT CLOTHES SEE VASSAR BARN BURN

Fire started in the early hours of Friday morning last week in the barns at Vassar College, but when the students tried to get out of the dormitories to see the blaze, they found matrons at the doors with orders not to let them out for fear that they might catch cold or get in the way of the firemen. Determined to see the fire, however, the young women went to rooms on the ground floor, and more than a hundred of them climbed out of windows, clad in coats over their night clothing, and went racing over the fields to the barns.

YALE BEATS TIGERS

In the Brokaw Pool at Princeton Saturday afternoon the Yale University Swimming Team overcame the Tiger swimmers by a score of 38-15. In the meet the intercollegiate record of 40 minutes for the 75 ft. plunge was broken twice and the world's record of 36 2-5 seconds equalled. The Yale Water Polo Team was defeated 69 to 11.

The meet was one of the events of the Princeton Prom. festivities and was the second centest in which Princeton has been defeated by any team in the Intercollegiate Swimming League, although the Navy Team, which is not in the League, gained a victory over them in both swimming and water polo. Princeton will come to New Haven to swim a return meet with the University in the Carnegie Pool next Saturday.

B. J. Wood, 1922, by making the 75-foot plunge in 39 4-5 seconds broke the intercollegiate record of 40 seconds, which R. H. Meager,1921, made last year in the Carnegie Pool, and which Wood equalled last Friday in the meet with C. C. N. Y.

Guernsey, 1922, followed him by doing the 75 feet in 36 2-5 seconds, thereby equalling the world's record, which was made by Simmerson in Hawaii about a month ago, and establishing a new intercollegiate record. Both plungers were timed by four watches.

LACROSSE PLANS COMPLETE

Plans for the Princeton University lacrosse team for this spring are now practically completed. The sport has been officially recognized by the University Athletic Association and will have the status of a regular minor sport in the future. A tentative schedule has been drawn up, nine games being scheduled, of which four will be in Princeton. Included in this are games with Syracuse, holder of the Intercollegiate League and the team of Oxford University, amateur champions of England.

Permission also was given the polo team to participate in the intercollegiate polo tournament at New York on March 17 and 18.

ANN ARBOR BARS JAZZ

An excerpt from the Detroit Times headed "Good News from Ann Arbor" rejoicingly gives its approval to the action of the undergraduates of the University of Michigan in eliminating jazz at dances of the Michigan Union. Yet there will be dances at Michigan to something which the writer of the article describes as "resembling real music, and the African tom-tom aspect of the thing will be no more."
